Tribulation and Tribute

June has been quite a month for me and my family.

At the beginning of the month, we lost our dear mother, Nancy, in the final stages of Alzheimer's. It still does not seem real to us.

My mother loved clogging and the family of cloggers. From the sweatshirts she made for so many, to the trips she and my Dad made with cloggers, I thank you for being so kind. I also must thank my late Grandmother who was my clogging inspiration and my parents who got us into square dancing at a young age. It truly changed all of our lives.

A week after Mom's service, one of my brothers had a boating accident resulting in a skull fracture and traumatic brain injury that put him into a coma for 16 days. Going to tell my father about the accident and that drive to the trauma hospital was one of the hardest things I have ever done.

A major financial investment to family members to help them buy a business turned into a nightmare when it was found that there was a myriad of issues of mismanagement, misinformation and misdeeds and I have had to legally take over to save the business and the jobs it supports and my financial investment. The betrayal has caused a wedge in the family during a very trying time and the added responsibilities and the many stresses it has created have put me in a place emotionally that I have never experienced before.

Needless to say, clogging has seemed pretty unimportant lately. Like I usually do, I have tried to lay low. I am very private usually and I tend to shut down when I get too much going on. My close friends and family know that and have been an amazing support system.

In May, right as my Mother's condition became critical, my partner in the World of Clogging Workshop put together a surprise tribute for me at our Memorial Day event. The touching words from so many people that I care about were a medicine that was much needed. Thank you, Hanna and everyone who was a part of the tribute. Barb Elko has written a wonderful article about it for this issue.

The outpouring of love and support from the clogging family this month has been a source of comfort for me that has helped me and the family tremendously. A longtime clogging friend was with us at hospice daily and those who travelled long distances to attend Mom's memorial or send flowers meant so much.

My brother is doing amazing considering the extent of his injury. His progress has defied the odds and is out of ICU. He will face a long recovery but he is out of the woods and responding well. Every day we see improvements.

Little messages, thank you's for mentoring and advice, tokens of love and a mountain of prayers sent have made a great difference in days that seemed very dark and have made me realize what a wonderful life I have. Even with the losses, and the pain and the uncertainty of the future, I have been blessed with a gift that few people gain in this life. All over the world and throughout my life I have left pieces of my heart and gathered marks on my own and many of those traces and their impact make their way home at the most incredible times and in the most amazing ways.

Thanks for all of your love, prayers and support.

The World of Clogging Workshop and Championships

by Barbara Elko

A quarter of a century old this year, the World of Clogging workshop/competition continues to entice cloggers to spend their USA Memorial Holiday Weekend dancing. This long running workshop has had several locations over the years since its start in Columbus, Ohio. Currently the Cincinnati Airport Marriott is home, a very accommodating location. The longevity of this workshop is evidence that this one is special. A successful workshop constantly evolves taking on its own personality. These distinctions often determine the degree of fun for the attendees, thus building an allegiance to that particular workshop. Like myself, many dancers return to the World of Clogging year after year, cause this one is more fun than a barrel of monkeys!

Beginning at the Ramada Inn in Columbus, Ohio in the early 1990's, the event (then called the Memorial Day Clogging Spectacular) was a partnership of instructors Tandy Barrett, Charlie Burns, Jeff Driggs, Sallie James and Steve Smith.

Last year Hanna Healy and Jeff Driggs, the hosts of the current event (now known as the World of Clogging), tried a unique idea. They held an instructors lottery. Twelve lucky instructors were selected and given a fifty minute teaching slot. The lottery was an ingenious idea! The results were favorable so Hanna and Jeff decided to have a lottery again this year. Six of the lottery winners from last year were invited back to teach. Those lucky teachers who were given the chance to return were Donna Aberman of Florida, Billie Jo Burnette of Tennessee, Barb Elko of Pennsylvania, Chris Phelps from Michigan, Naomi Zweben King from Ohio, and Bekka Gunner from New York. The six remaining teaching slots were offered in a lottery again and included Christy Corwin Howard from Indiana, Jason Pflugh from Ohio, Tina Curtis from Canada, Jared Pullum from Kentucky, Brian Dion from Ohio, and Colleen Zurbrigg from Canada.

I was one of the six instructors invited back to teach, and trust me it was an invitation that did not take long to RSVP. I think for the returning six instructors this year was even more

Center: World of Clogging Workshop coordinator Hanna Healy and daughter Emmy learn "Can't Stop the Feeling" as instructor and workshop partner Jeff Driggs cues from the stage.

Bottom: The evening fun dances at the World of Clogging event give the staff a chance to join in the fun as the dance floor rocks to everyone's favorite routines.

fun. After all, last year, most of us were strangers, and part of a new experiment...outcome unknown. An interesting thing about the lottery those selected have various levels of experience, skills, and totally different approaches to teaching. It is intriguing to enter a class having no idea what to expect. The common denominator for all twelve winners was their enthusiasm to be part of the World of Clogging.

The lucky 2016 lottery winners!

Bekka Gunner, Christy Corwin Howard, Chris Phelps, and Jared Pullman came with advanced routines. Bekka's routine was so fast that everyone, including herself, rested on the floor afterwards... good stuff! Christy Corwin Howard challenged her group with a choreography to "Dessert", as did Chris Phelps with "Haven't Had Enough", both great routines. Jared Pullman taught "Five More Hours". Talent runs through this young man's veins! Colleen Zurbrigg -- a seasoned instructor from Canada -- brought her smile, cue sheet and a routine to "Irish Stew". Her routines always contain some creative steps. Tina Curtis also from Canada had a well-received intermediate pop routine to "The Fighter". Jason Pflugh showed an intermediate routine to "Love This Life". Jason and Tina both have a straight forward presentations that make it easy to learn. Naomi Zweben-King had those taking her class moving to Pitbull's "Shake Senora", creating a bit of laughter. Donna Aberman taught a good country routine to "Blame It On The Stars. Billie Jo Burnette is an energetic instructor. She pleased those taking her class with a routine to "Stomp". Brian Dion from Ohio was the lottery's rookie. He is new to being on stage as a workshop instructor, however his pleasant demeanor made this class a winner. Brian's strong point is his connection to the dancers.

Barb Elko (hey that's me) shared the same teaching slot with Jeff Driggs. I felt sorry for him and did everything I could to reassure him that he would have a decent turnout and do just fine, but he still seemed a little nervous. Before I started teaching I glanced around the room. What I saw was a roomful of friendships formed over the past decade of clogging. It was awesome sharing my routine to "Freaks Like Me" with these folks. I am hoping for a three-peat invite in the teaching lottery next year!

Saturday there was an instructors luncheon, hosted by the workshop's coordinators Jeff Driggs and Hanna Healy. A large oval table just about filled the room. As I looked around at those seated at the table my first thoughts were, "These are very special, highly skilled people, what in the world am I doing here?" I felt a bit out of place sitting among the legendary instructors, talking shop. Jeff, Naomi, Hanna, and the others shared comical stories of past clogging experiences. A book about their clogging adventures is long overdue. Maybe each instructor could submit a chapter. Bet it would be a fast seller at any workshop... just a suggestion!

A main attraction at any workshop is the one and only Naomi Pyle. She taught several routines, and dancers could pick one -- any one -- because they were all fun!

A grand addition to the teaching staff was Australian instructor Nathan Ballard. He shared two intermediate routines and one advanced. Nathan loves to dance and make new friends, a winning combination. One of his routines was to a song called "Hula Hoop". A great routine, but Nathan's skills at using a hula hoop were not as good as his clogging skills! By the end of the weekend, with proper instruction, on hip movement Nathan can now keep the hula hoop circling...for a bit!

Most cloggers are familiar with instructor Sherry Cox, she is fabulous. Sherry was a fixture of the Memorial Day workshop in its early years, but she took a break to start a family. Now, Sherry and her twelve year old son Gavin, were part of the teaching staff this year. Gavin is amazing, poise well beyond his years, unbelievably skilled, and absolutely charming. This young man is so talented he actually has a job clogging! He performs in the popular Hatfield and McCoy show in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee. If you are in the area see the show it is great family entertainment!

Four words coincide with instructor Trevor DeWitt... country, bluegrass, speed, and laughter. Thank goodness his country routine to "Never Had To Go" was an easy intermediate one because the speed was insane, tons of fun!

Judy Waymouth is an outstanding, unpretentious, instructor from Canada. In recognition of all her contributions to dancing, she has received several awards through the years, including an honor at last year's World of Clogging and this year's Nickel City Clogging Festival. Attendees had the opportunity to take an advanced Step Dancing class with her. She also presented an intermediate and a beginner pop routine.

Kentucky instructor Morgan Hudson has to have legs made of rubber. I still cannot figure out how his legs bend in so many different directions seemingly at the same time. Dancers really liked his intermediate routine to “Lose My Mind”.

Jeff Driggs once again had a room full of dancers working feverishly to master steps while doing a variety of hand movements. How does he come up with this stuff? His new routine to “Can’t Stop The Feeling” was gut busting.

Sister duo from Kentucky Kaylee and Lauren Thomas led a duo/duet class. These talented sisters have been duo/duet champions many times over. Jamie Vincent, the director of the competition team Taps in Motion, held an instructor’s forum that gave teachers a chance to ask questions and learn from Jamie, who runs a large studio program with all levels. Jamie also teaches a special class for those with disabilities and some of the dancers were able to attend the weekend’s competition and put on a show that brought the audience to its feet.

Kelly and Kenny Fithen are directors of the two time national champion clogging group Stole Power. The husband and wife team offered an advanced steps class. Many of you may recognize Kenny from his stint as an original member of ALL THAT.

Other members of the ALL THAT ensemble were on hand as well, along with dancers from four-time national champion clogging team TAP THIS! from Nebraska.

Needless to say, there was plenty of clogging to be learned from this all star staff.

The evening fun dances were great! Bunches of cloggers doing what they do best, laughing on the dance floor. Good fun dances that keep the floor full and moving take a special talent, and the World of Clogging event is one of those events that know how to run a fun dance.

Not only are there workshops, but the event includes a competition. Competition started Saturday evening and ran for two hours prior to the start of the fun dance. This gave everyone the opportunity to watch some outstanding dancing. The routines, costumes, and dancers energy were boundless. The bulk of the competition resumed Sunday morning.

Saturday night was really special! Hanna planned a surprise tribute to honor Jeff Driggs. (I will fill you all in on the details in a separate article.)

Sunday’s competition bring a whole different group of people to the venue, as families and dancers filled the theatre style ballroom for a full day of contests in team, solo and duo categories. Dancers from seven states and Australia joined in the day’s championships and took home more than $5,000.00 in trophies and awards.

Because of the return of so many dancers year after year the World Of Clogging workshop and competition has the warm feeling of coming home. At the same time there is always something fresh. Thanks Hanna and Jeff and all those involved for making it happen year after year 25 years to be exact. Congratulations!

Middle: One of the fun things about the World of Clogging Championships is watching the young dancers faces when they win a trophy that is taller than they are!

World of Clogging Event Honors Jeff Driggs

By: Barbara Elko

A Dynasty is a secession of leaders from the same family or group. Jeff Driggs beyond a shadow of a doubt is currently the powerful, yet gentle leader of our clog dynasty.

He has protected the knowledge and skills passed on from previous generations of leaders, yet he continues to grow with the ever changing styles of clog dancing. His amiable method of teaching promotes laughter, as dancers attempt to master his routines, some which include steps combined with hand movements. Jeff's love of dance is superseded only by his love for mankind.

Hanna Healy, Jeff's partner in the Memorial Day World of Clogging event and president of the Western New York Clogging Association, decided it was time we express our gratitude to a guy we all love and respect. She organized a tribute to Jeff to be held during the weekend's program.

Hanna's "Mission Impossible" was keeping the tribute a surprise, seeing as Jeff being a humble person would never agree to such a tribute. Planning the tribute in the midst of all of the activities of the events was not an easy feat!

As would any great leader, Jeff knows all that is occurring in the clog dynasty. Poor Hanna! There were so many individuals and groups involved, speakers and demos to arrange, social media to be contained, the hotel staff had to be hushed, etc. Only Hanna would attempt a surprise of this magnitude, and make it happen!

Naomi Pyle had her own mission. She needed to get the inflatable fat suits from Jeff that they and fellow instructors Scotty Bilz, Chip Summey and Barry Welch used to do a comical exhibition at the Fontana Jamboree in honor of ALL THAT. Calling themselves ALL FAT! they performed to the Backstreet Boys "Larger Than Life." The YouTube posting of the routine caught the eye of America's Got Talent, who invited them to Nashville, Tennessee to audition for the show. Naomi told Jeff she wanted to borrow the suits for a routine her group would be doing at their fair. She said the fat suits would send the routine over the top. She asked him to bring them to World Of Clogging. Jeff being kind hearted and considerate said I will bring them to Lake Cumberland a workshop they were both teaching at in April. This way they would have more time to practice wearing them. I do not know how Naomi held a straight face as she thanked him.

Mission Impossible accomplished!

Jeff had no clue so many were gathering to thank

Photo: Top: Barb Elko joined in the tribute to Jeff Driggs and knitted him a "Duck Dynasty" cap with beard as a gift. Emcees Scott Dobson and Naomi Pyle led the program.

Middle: The Buckeye Country Cloggers from Bellville, Ohio danced a routine choreographed by Jeff during the tribute.

Bottom: 93 year old Pearl Harbor survivor and clogger Jim Kimmerly, of the Fancy Free Cloggers of Ohio, wanted to surprise Jeff by doing 20 pushups in his honor. Not only did Jim do 20, but he kept going until he got to 30! The crowd responded with a standing ovation. The surprise tribute was coordinated by event coordinator Hanna Healy.

him. Saturday evening's competition ran a few minutes longer than expected and Jeff was eager to get the fun dance going. He made his way to the sound table to speed up the transition when Hanna stepped in and told him she would take it from there. A thoroughly confused Jeff was led to a comfortable high-backed chair that had been brought to the front of the ballroom as Naomi Pyle and Scott Dobson with microphones in hand started the tribute to a man who stands alone. Naomi described Jeff as a kind, generous, wonderful friend, who remains so even when she wakes him at three in the morning with her latest clogging ideas.

Scott talked fondly of their shared travels and Jeff's story telling. Scott asked Naomi what she most admired about Jeff. She responded "How much time have you got?"

It is impossible to sum up Jeff Driggs, but I wanted to share a bit of the tribute to an amazing man!

To condense his thoughts, Florida instructor Matt Koziuk used the noun "inspiration." Jeff is a person who causes stimulation and excitement of the mind and or feelings. He pushes one to want to be creative, active, and to do great things. "We are all just a little bit better off to have had Driggs in our lives." Paul Melville added to the tribute, saying "If Bill Nichols is the grandfather of clogging, then Jeff must be the father of clogging."

A tearful, Judy Waymouth, who has know Jeff since 1985, began by saying what a wonderful mentor Jeff has been to her two sons. "I honestly cannot think of another person that has given more to this dance form."

Nathan Ballard from Australia met Jeff in 2004. He frequently reaches out to Jeff for advice. The experience of traveling to Europe last year with Jeff was invaluable. Nathan asked all those attending the tribute to do him a favor. Giving a nod to the descriptive expression “everything” among Nathan’s clogging friends, Nathan that the entire crowd repeat these words “Jeff Driggs is everything, 1 2 ready go” “Jeff Driggs is everything” was repeated so loudly that it was probably heard outside the building.

Delohn Collins, a member of All That, has known Jeff for nearly thirty years. He was seven years old when they first met. He said as a child his hero was He-Man. As an adult his heroes were his grandparents and parents. He believes a hero is somebody you aspire to be. “In the world of clogging, Jeff Driggs is my hero. I love him with all my heart,” Delohn said.

Several groups demonstrated during the tribute. Every demo was a routine that Jeff had choreographed through the years. The Fancy Free Cloggers performed the first demo of the evening to a bluegrass song “Drivin’ Nails”. Earlier in the evening, Jeff was a bit puzzled as to why this group had come to the fun dance dressed alike. Fooling this man was not easy.

Jim Kimmerly, a member of the Fancy Free Cloggers, was introduced. He is 93 years old, and a survivor of Pearl Harbor. Jim wanted to give Jeff a special tribute, so he announced that he would do twenty push-ups. The audience cheered and counted each push up. When he got 20 and continued doing pushups everyone was a bit worried. He actually gave Jeff 30. This incredible man earned a long standing ovation. What a wonderful way to pay tribute to Jeff!

Next, the Buckeye Country Cloggers of Bellville, Ohio danced to “Casey Jones.” It was apparent this one took Jeff back in time. His friendship with director Brian Dion and his Grandfather Paul Williams (who passed away early this year) goes back more than twenty years.

The Hills of Kentucky Cloggers filled the dance floor for a demo of “Real Time.” Fonda Hill and her team have been friends of Jeff’s for many years and Jeff was very touched by the group’s tributes.

Judy’s School of Dance picked Jeff’s fun routine to “Bang On The Drum All Day, for a lively demo that included an international mix of dancers from Canada and Nathan Ballard from Australia.

Studio One from Winchester, Kentucky, chose the choreography to Backstreet Boys song “Everybody” as their routine. It was an impressive demo and seeing the adults on the team joining with teen and college age members of the national champion clogging team doing a workshop dance to honor Jeff was awesome.

Joel Harrison’s Capital City Dance Shack, Tenacious, Sole Patrol and Tap This! teams hit the dance floor for a mashup of Jeff’s routines to “Party Rock Anthem” and “Born This Way.”

If you were not present you missed two very memorable things. One: The huge smile on Jeff’s face as the dancers did the running man step in “Party Rock Anthem.” Two: The return of the fat suits that Naomi borrowed for the group’s dancing to “Born This Way!”

The instructors from the World of Clogging gather on the dance floor to perform Jeff’s well known routine to “Mamma Mia.”

Then a huge cake was wheeled in. Jeff blew out the candle, making a wish. The tribute ended with all the attendants grabbing a spot on the floor and dancing Ida Red, a routine Jeff wrote in 1984.

I feel honored to have been a part of this tribute to a man who has given so much of himself to the world of clogging and to the “World of Clogging.”

Photo: Instructors from the World of Clogging Workshop completed the tribute to Jeff with a group performance of Jeff’s routine to “Mamma Mia.” The program was pulled off as a complete surprise to Jeff and to the delight of the dancers. Jeff was very touched by the honor and the time, energy and talent that went into it.
